REYNOLDS:—Mrs. Susan Reynolds, widow of the late Samuel Henry Reynolds, of Bellefonte, was found dead in bed at her home on West Linn St. about 8 o'clock on Monday morning, by Miss Ruth Hipple, employed as a maid at the home. Reporting for work as usual Monday morning, Miss Hipple became alarmed at Mrs. Reynold's absence and went to the bedroom, where she was unable to arouse the elderly woman. A physician summoned to the home declared that death had occurred about 5 o'clock that morning, and was the result of heart failure. Death came peacefully during sleep, he said. Mrs. Reynolds had spent the previous day as the guest at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Quigley, on East Linn Street, and upon returning to her home about 5:30 o'clock that afternoon apparently was in the best of health. The deceased was a daughter of Edwin and Mary Baumgardner Eberman, and was born in Lancaster on March 22, 1868, making her age at the time of death, 68 years, 8 months and 1 day. On November 12th, 1890, she was united in marriage with Samuel H. Reynolds, who passed away on October 6, 1935. Surviving are a son and a daughter; Samuel H. Reynolds, Jr., of New York City, and Mrs. Hugh M. Quigley, of Bellefonte, and one brother, Edwin Eberman, of Norfolk, Va. The Reynolds family came to Bellefonte in 1928 from Lancaster, and made their home here during the summer months. Before the death of Mr. Reynolds, it was their custom to spend the winters in Florida. Funeral services for Mrs. Reynolds were held Wednesday afternoon from St. James' Episcopal church in Lancaster, in charge of the Rev. Clifford G. Twombly. Interment was made in the Woodhill cemetery, Lancaster. Mrs. Reynolds was a devout member of the Episcopal church.

SWARMS OF SHARKS FOUND NEAR COAST

8/12/36
Ship's Master Warns Bathers
to Watch Out—Fire Island Region Has Many.

Captain Fritz Krone, master of the North German Lloyd liner Berlin, which arrived yesterday from Europe, issued a warning to bathers along the entire New England coast and the shores of Long Island to look out for man-eating sharks, which he had observed in great numbers.

Captain Krone said that in crossing from the English Channel he first encountered the sharks off the Grand Banks and later more particularly in the steamship lanes off Long Island. Many were sighted off Fire Island.

"In my many years in the North Atlantic trade," Captain Krone said, "I have never seen so many sharks at one time in these waters. The surface of the sea was literally covered with them from Fire Island until close up to the Ambrose Lightship.

"Bathers along the shore of Long Island and other points on the New England coast should be very careful when they go in to swim. Sharks move swiftly and can easily bite off a leg or an arm if they get the chance."

Apparently the North Atlantic abounds with marine monsters, as Captain Krone said the liner also had encountered several schools of whales in mid-ocean. He believed the mammals were steering north to get into cold water.

On Tuesday afternoon nearing New York, the captain said, he witnessed through his glasses a terrific battle between a shovel-nosed grampus and a swordfish. At times the two big fish would rise five or six feet from the water to attack each other.

Captain Krone added that shovel-nosed grampuses were even-tempered and it was probable that the swordfish had done something to annoy it. He pointed out that this species of grampus differs from the "whistling" grampus, which sometimes was mistaken for a foghorn by lookout men on sailing ships in thick weather years ago.

20-Foot Shark Attacks Dory

BOSTON, Aug. 12 (AP).—Three members of the crew of the fishing schooner Raymonde told a story today of beating off a twenty-foot shovelnose shark which attacked their dory on Georges Banks. The fishermen, Albion Muise, Peter Dousette and Jack Shannon, said they were after cod when the shark sniped at one of their lines and swallowed hook and fish. Then, the three said, the shark jumped out of the water and landed across their boat. They battled fifteen minutes to drive him away.

Memorial Held For Year's Dead Of Squadron A

600 Guests Attend Church of Heavenly Rest Service for 101st Cavalry Unit

10,000 Witness Parade

Marks 20th Anniversary of
Start for Mexican Border

Members and former members of Squadron A, Manhattan Units, 101st Cavalry, who died during the last year were honored yesterday afternoon at a memorial service held in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Ninetieth Street and Fifth Avenue. More than 600 guests attended the service and 10,000 spectators watched the squadron parade from its armory at Ninety-fourth Street and Park Avenue to the church.

Dressed in their service uniforms, the 350 members of the squadron were escorted to the church by 150 members of the Association of Ex-Members of Squadron A, who were attired in formal morning dress with silk top hats, and the 7th Regiment Band, led by Captain Francis W. Sutherland. Two mounted policemen preceded the parade.

Captain William C. Roberson acted as commanding officer of the squadron in the absence of Major Frederick A. Viator. In his staff were the Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest and honorary chaplain; Major James N. Caperton, D. O. L.; Captain Robert MacKellar and First Lieutenants Herbert Martin, Edward Hill and E. Haussen. Captain John S. Wise and Captain Alfred G. Tuckerman commanded Troops E and K, respectively, while Troop F was commanded for the day by First Lieutenant George Comstock.

Colonel W. R. Wright, chief of staff of the 27th Division and president of the ex-members' association, led the detail of former members. Francis O. Noble, Frederick Beltz, Jose A. Machado jr. and Ralph G. Albrecht were members of the association's color guard.

Dr. Darlington conducted the services in the church. He said that God gave many opportunities each day to individuals for a new beginning. After several numbers by the vested choir and a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Charles Trexler, chaplain of the squadron, the assemblage rose and sang the national anthem.

Frederick L. Roessler, bugler of Troop K, then sounded "taps," and Dr. Darlington read the list of deceased members, as follows:

MANHATTAN UNIT, 101ST CAVALRY
Sergeant William P. Klausner, Troop E; Private Thomas A. Howard, Troop F; Private Helmer A. Hendrickson, Medical Department.

EX-MEMBERS, SQUADRON A

James R. Knapp, Frederick J. Grace, Warren E. Diefendorf, Robert W. Conrow, Herbert A. Koenig, William A. Brady jr., Benjamin B. Tilt, John S. Rogers, Charles R. Wendt, Henry Pendleton Rogers, William S. Jones, Howard M. Cowperthwait, Sherrill Babcock, Reune Martin.

Red and white troop guidons, some of which dated back before the Spanish-American War, hung from the balconies of the church. The services were held on the twentieth anniversary of the squadron's departure for the Mexican border.

E. S. APPLEBY DIES; REALTY LEADER, 73

Lawyer Was Owner of Large Properties on Long Island, Mainly Around Glen Cove.

SOLD LAND TO J. P. MORGAN

Charles Evans Hughes Won Suit for Him and Brother Against City for Tract Under Hudson.

Edgar S. Appleby, a lawyer and real estate leader and owner of large properties on Long Island, died of pneumonia yesterday morning at his home, 18 East Sixty-sixth Street, after a brief illness. He was 73 years old.

An extensive stretch of property along the waterfront at Glen Cove has been owned by Mr. Appleby and his brother, John S. Appleby, for many years. Five years ago part of it was sold to J. P. Morgan to complete the property which is now known as Morgan Memorial Park, on which Station 10 of the New York Yacht Club was placed. Another piece of twenty-two acres, including the old Appleby homestead, one of the oldest homes in Nassau County, was sold to the Glen Cove Lodge of Elks.

Two important pieces of waterfront property in Glen Cove are still owned by the brothers. One large piece, a heavily wooded section, is known as the Appleby Woods and the other is the property on which the Hempstead Harbor Yacht Club stands. In South Glen Cove Mr. Appleby kept an estate of more than forty acres, while his brother also has separate lands.

About twenty-five years ago Mr. Appleby and his brother engaged in a joint suit against the City of New York over the ownership of property under water along the Hudson River, between Thirty-ninth and Forty-first Streets and Twelfth and Thirteenth Avenues. In the case, which was argued for the Appleby brothers in the Supreme Court by Charles Evans Hughes, then former Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, it was claimed that the city had appropriated the property for its own use without condemnation proceedings. The Supreme Court granted clear title of the property to the Applebys. Later the city got the property through condemnation action.

In 1884 Mr. Appleby was graduated from Columbia College and in 1886 from Columbia Law School. Throughout his life he confined his legal activity largely to acting as trustee and managing real estate.

He married Miss May Valentine, a member of one of the oldest families of Nassau County, who died in 1915. Besides his brother, Mr. Appleby leaves two sons, Edgar T. and Francis S. Appleby, both famous amateur billiard players.

Funeral services and burial will be private.

—Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Quigley and their two children, Ellen and Henry, of East Linn Street, became pioneers of something or other, Sunday, when they borrowed a canoe at Hecla Park, hauled it several miles to the Phantom Lake near the Bellefonte airport, and spent the afternoon navigating that 200-acre body of water. As far as is known, they are the first persons to navigate the lake for purely recreational purposes. They sailed from the Tressler farm to the airport, headed toward the large flocks of wild ducks and geese that have been resting at the lake, and caused the birds to rise from the water and fly excitedly about overhead until they left the vicinity. The birds then settled once more to the water. The Quigleys proved that the lake could readily be adapted for use as a recreational resort, provided it remained in place instead of appearing and disappearing at will. The current appearance of the lake is the first in eight years.

Mrs. H. H. Barler Bride Of William F. Orbison

R. Grosvenor Hutchins of 299 Park avenue announced today the marriage of his daughter, Mrs. Harriet H. Barler of Westport, Conn., and this city, to William F. Orbison of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. George Hugh Smyth in the Hitchcock Memorial Church, Scarsdale, N. Y. Mr. Orbison is a graduate of Princeton University.

Women's Efforts Are Non-Partisan Even in the Present Campaign

Women's City Club and New York League of Women Voters Stick to the Charter.

With many women of the greater city keenly aggressive in partisan activities during the present campaign, members of the Women's City Club and the New York Branch of the League of Women Voters are working in absolutely non-partisan efforts to promote what they believe to be the long-time welfare of their home city.

They are enthusiastic in support of the new charter, and, inspired by a feeling of citizenship responsibility, they are putting their experience and their resourcefulness into a citywide campaign of education to the end that every organization or individual that may desire more information concerning the provisions of the proposed charter may have it for the asking.

Mrs. Donald Hutchinson, who is chairman of the Charter Revision paigning." Mrs. Hutchinson's group is a division of the league's committee on government and its operation, of which Mrs. John Cunningham is chairman.

The charter revision committee of the Women's City Club, headed by Miss Juliet Bartlett, club secretary, expects to conduct as many as 500 home round tables in its campaign to make the city's voters charter conscious. A number of these meetings have been held during recent weeks by club members in their country homes, their guests being New York city voters. Mrs. H. Edward Dreier is chairman of the club's city affairs committee of thirty-five members. Miss Bartlett's committee is a division of the city affairs committee, but the entire group, she said, is working devotedly in the round table plan.

Representation.

"We have also printed 60,000 copies of a pamphlet on proportional representation," Miss Bartlett said, "for which we are obtaining wide circulation. We have arranged for it to be on sale on newsstands throughout the city. It is humorous in tone and simply put." As one of the arguments for the new charter this pamphlet states: "There are twelve men in the world who understand the Einstein theory. There is nobody who understands our present charter."

The pamphlet shows how, under proportional representation, every 75,000 Democratic voters in the city would be entitled to one Democratic representative in the legislative branch of the city government; every 75,000 Republicans to one Republican representative and every 75,000 Socialists or members of any other minority party to one representative of their own way of thinking. This plan would give each political point of view representation in proportion to the number of voters holding that view. If the new charter had no other merit this one alone should win for it the support of every New Yorker, the women proponents think.

Miss Juliet Bartlett, secretary of the Women's City Club and head of the club's charter revision committee.

Committee of the League of Women Voters, said yesterday: "We have between two and three hundred members enrolled for speaking and other educational activities on behalf of the new charter, and whenever we are asked to supply a speaker for any group—women's clubs, teacher-parent organization, civic organization, &c., we are glad to do so. We had training classes for speakers last year, and now the women so trained are attending lectures given every Tuesday at 11 o'clock in the morning at headquarters of the Citizens Charter Committee. At the first of these about forty of our members were present to receive expert instruction on charter provisions.

Door to Door.

"All of our pre-election activities this year center on educational work for the new charter. I think that perhaps our group is most keenly interested in proportional representation, which, as we all know, we cannot have unless the new charter is adopted. In some of the districts we are planning the difficult task of door to door cam-

Farmers Alert for Reappearance of Phantom Lake in Centre County

Special to The Inquirer.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., March 13.—As the Ides of March approach Centre county farmers southeast of Bellefonte are keeping a close check on a sink hole at one corner of the Harry Tressler farm, apprehensive lest the county's "phantom lake," which last year spread over an area of more than 200 acres of fertile farm land, inundating a State highway and a large portion of the Bellefonte airport for more than two months, may again make its appearance.

The sink hole began pouring forth a giant spout of water from some unknown underground source on March 11 last year. On May 15 the Zion-Pleasant Gap Highway was still impassable, the airport was still partially covered and farmers, delayed in their spring planting, plowed each day as close as possible to the receding waters.

The lake has been coming and going for as long as oldest residents of the region can remember. Some years it appears, and other years the sink hole remains dry. Last year, the first time the lake appeared in eight years, it established new records, covering a larger area and remaining longer than ever before.

The lake is a substantial one when it does turn up. On March 2, 1910, Samuel Osman, now a prominent citizen of Port Matilda, was driving in a horse and buggy along the Zion-Pleasant Gap Highway when he suddenly found the rig surrounded by water. The horse made a lunge, lost its footing and drowned.

Osman was rescued by neighbors who heard his cries for help. In court here two years later he won a verdict of $1000 from Spring township for the loss of the horse.

Last year Centre countians had the Centre County's phantom lake, which often appears in springtime near Bellefonte, Pa. This was a view last March from the centre of the Zion-Pleasant Gap highway, looking towards Zion. In the centre background the highway, which was impassable more than two months, appears emerging from the lake.

unusual experience of viewing sea gulls, which made their home at the lake for several weeks. They apparently had been blown inward by severe storms along the coast.

Many other types of migratory birds made the lake a temporary resting place. Hugh M. Quigley, Bellefonte business man, made history by procuring a boat and taking his family for a Sunday outing on the broad expanse of water.

No streams pass near the region where the phantom lake appears. General belief is that in the spring the labyrinth of limestone caverns which underlie this section of the county becomes filled with water and the surplus comes to the surface. When the water drains out of the caverns the lake recedes and finally disappears through the same hole from which it sprung.

Farmers whose lands were affected by last year's visitation are: Harry Tressler, E. J. Gentzel, Harry Garbick, Joseph Owens and Mrs. Benjamin Kauffman, the latter having been stranded in her home.

Whatever the source, the farmers living in the area are keeping tab on the sink hole, while hip boots are kept close at hand, for most any of these mornings the lake is liable to appear.
